Which photoshoot do you need

The 15 minute shoot is ample for those who want a headshot for a business card, website or for some company flyers. Typically males will be dressed in a business suit, shirt and tie.

The 30 minute shoot adds versatility to the shoot allowing time for formal and more casual looks: for example the same formal look as before plus a more casual look with perhaps no jacket and/or no tie

The 60 minute shoot allows extends the previous two looks by allowing time to change outfits to perhaps a polo shirt and jeans if that is appropriate for your line of work and the envisaged usage of the images.

TERMS & CONDITIONS

Title to use images passes to the Client upon full payment (cleared funds if by cheque or EFT)

The photographer retains the copyright under Australian Law. This can be assigned to the client upon payment of an appropriate fee (usually seven times the original fee). The photographer may use my images for the purposes of self-promotion.

Licence conditions: the image can only be used in accordance with the agreed licence restrictions as negotiated with the photographer at the time of the photoshoot. Variations may be subject to an additional fee. If the image is published in the media then a credit to the photographer should be sought. The images are not to be re-sold without permission of the photographer.

The photographer will take direction from the Client or their representative but the final artistic interpretation lies with the photographer, who will use their experience and skill to produce a high quality image for your use. We strive to produce pleasing images of real people, not the plastic, over-manipulated images often seen on the covers of popular magazines
